IGNATIAN

. . . 1952

the seventeenth volume of the yearbook of St. Ignatius High School — Cleveland, Ohio.

Cleveland is our campus . . .

We are St. Ignatius, the Jesuit High School, corner of West 30th Street and Carroll Avenue.

Strictly speaking we do not have a campus. The school building stands so close to the streets that the streets are our campus. But the streets overrun the City.

West 30th Street runs into Lorain, Lorain goes west to Fairview, east to Carneigie, to Shaker and University Heights. Carroll Avenue meets 25th Street, 25th Street runs south to Parma and Brooklyn, north to Superior Avenue, Superior goes down town, on east to Euclid and East Cleveland.

So you see the City is our campus, the Terminal Tower, the Leader Building, the Cleveland Hotel, Republic Steel, Child's Restaurant, St. John's Cathedral.

We come to St. Ignatius from the City. Each year that we are here, as freshmen, sophomores, juniors, seniors, we prepare ourselves in a special way to be Christian leaders later in the City's offices and industries as our alumni have done before us.

dedication

Alumni . . . Cleveland, city of steel, harbor city with towered skyline, is an expanding, progressive city. The men who crowd along her streets, work in her offices, move her industry are vital, progressive men, men with vision who are making Cleveland better, greater, more productive.

Alumni . . . going from St. Ignatius into the City, you have worked her industry, defended the laws in her courts, become leaders in her marts of commerce, cared for the City's sick as doctors; you have built, constructed; as priests you have supernaturalized the City's progress and helped her people worship God.

Alumni . . . because you have shown us a way, because you have made Ignatius known and respected in the City, because you have established our school as a source of vitality and influence, we dedicate the '52 Ignatian to you.

We attend our first Mass of the Holy Ghost in St. Patrick's.

we become leaders with initiative

The way into the City is the school. The school is the way because it teaches math and literature. But the school is the way for another reason — its activities. These, we found, developed our initiative, a quality men need who are intent on making spiritual and material progress later in the City.

For us extra-curricular activities were a lighter side of school. We joined the Sodality, learned to debate, write stories for the Eye, draw posters, take and develop pictures. These activities made us feel at home, gave us friendships, developed our interest in a multitude of things, and gave us the desire to begin them.

Those of us who were interested in speech made a start in debating. By working with the sophomores we learned how to present our case, how to make a rebuttal. Participation in four tournaments also gave us some actual experience.

Others of us were interested in music and took lessons from Mr. Hearns. Soon we were drilling and practicing with the band. We learned to march together and follow the drum major's signals. We learned, too, that it's not so easy to march in formation and blow your horn at the same time.

Debaters have to know the debate manual completely. Examining it here are Marty Patton, George McBride, John Barrett, Don Novak, and Mr. O'Reilly, S.J.

These freshmen who played in the band are: Bob Walters, Tom Kirkhope, Paul Greene and John Ferritto.

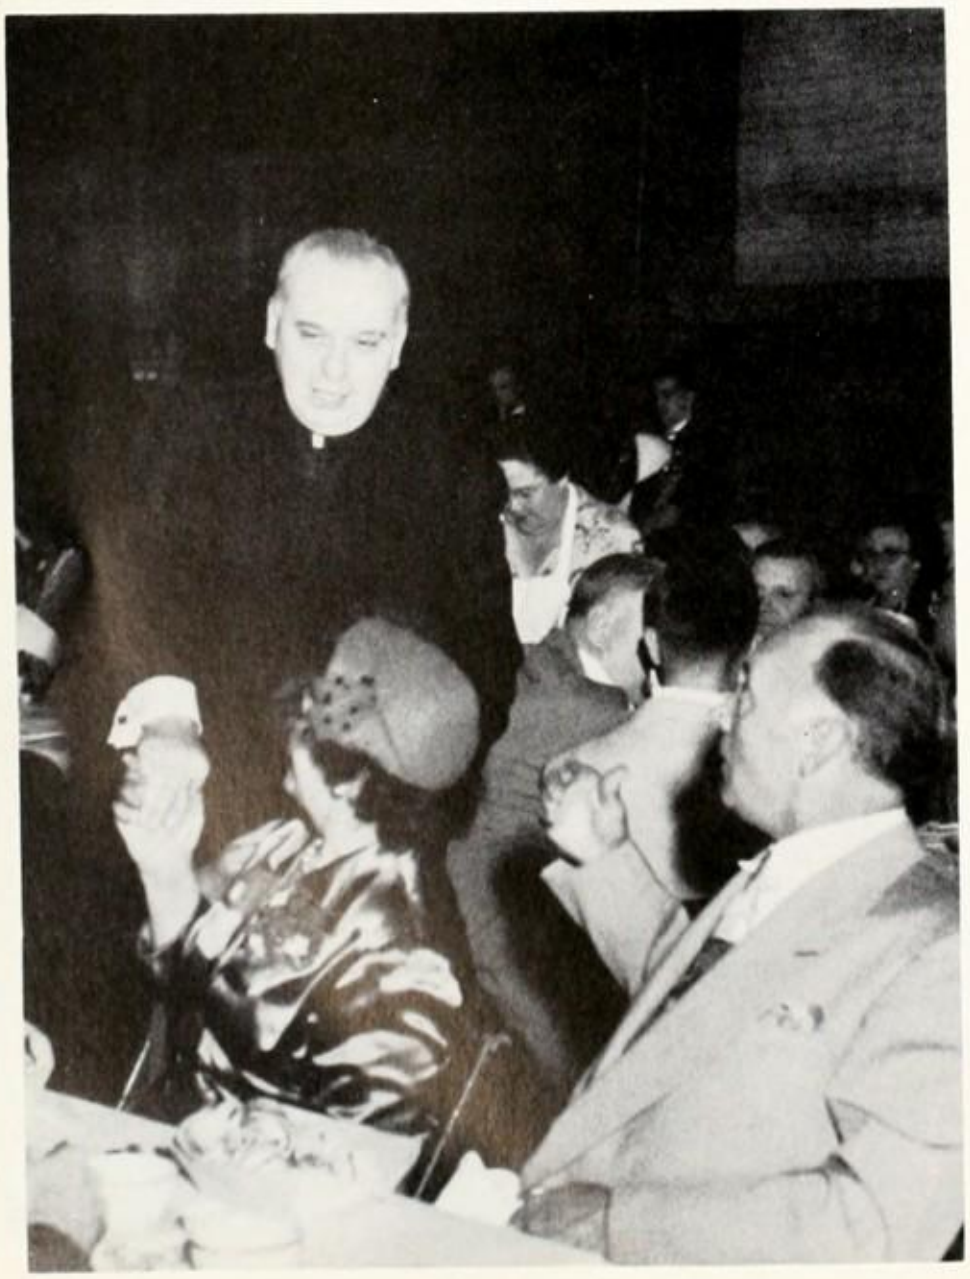
welcome parents

At the Fathers Club Clambake Fr. Crimmin, S.J., said farewell.



At the end of the Fathers Club picnic some of us freshmen won prizes.

Dad graduated from high school twenty-five, perhaps thirty years ago. I'm just a freshman, starting high school, but Dad is interested in my school.

In September, when the Fathers Club had their "Welcome Night," Dad took Mom down to school and introduced her to other Fathers Club members, their wives, and to some of my teachers. Mom and Dad still talk about the good time they had.

On the first Sunday in November, Dad and I went to the Fathers Club Communion Mass in St. John's Cathedral. It was a snowy morning, the streets were bad, but we made it all right. Afterwards we had breakfast together at the Hollenden Hotel and heard Judge MacNamee speak. The fellows were all there with their dads.

Mom and Dad went down to school again in February for a card party which the Fathers Club sponsored. The Scholarship Drive began in March and Dad worked awfully hard selling raffle books himself and getting his friends to sell them. But he said it was a good cause and wished he could do more.

Like I say, its been twenty or thirty years since Dad graduated from high school, but he certainly takes an interest in my school.

After the Communion Mass many Ignatians and their Dads walked over to the Hollenden for breakfast.

r. O'Reilly, S.J., helped Fr. Pingstock distribute Holy Communion to us at the Fathers and Son Mass.

Fr. O'Brien offered the Mass at the Cathedral for Ignatians and their Dads.

our Lady beckons

We freshmen found the Sodality at St. Ignatius the kind of organization that helps you get to Mass and Communion oftener, say prayers better, and be a better man all around.

A lot of us joined the Freshman Sodality which prepares you to be received into the Senior Sodality. Fr. W. B. McMahon, S.J., and Mr. J. E. Chambers, S.J., ran the meetings for us and explained the rules.

One of the biggest activities connected with the Sodality during the year was the annual retreat, which we made with the sophomores. Fr. L. Kaluzsa, S.J., was our retreat master. Each day we went to Mass and Communion, made spiritual reading, and had talks from Fr. Kaluzsa in St. Mary's Church. The silence and recollection were new to us and somehow wonderful.

Freshmen Sodalists were enrolled into the Knights of the Blessed Sacrament in the Faculty Chapel.

Faithful and industrious artists: Don Novak, Joe Boufford, Chuck Moravec, Stan Lavelle, Mr. O'Shaughnessy, S. J., Mike Stanton, and Mike Johns.

During the second semester the Eye staff, Art Club, Camera Club, and Chess Club signed up freshmen members.

Since the Eye staff was losing its senior members in June, Mr. J. L. Magmer, S.J., Eye moderator, trained us to take their places. Each Wednesday we had a meeting at which we learned newspaper management, and how to write news stories. With the May issue we joined the staff officially.

The Camera Club, we found, had a fully equipped dark room, developing tanks, printers, enlarger. Most of us knew quite a bit about cameras and pictures before we joined, but working with older camera club members, we improved and learned a lot more.

When the Harlequins staged Brother Orchid in late February, we got quite a work-out painting publicity posters. Later in the spring we did poster work for the Fathers Club raffle and for the senior prom.

Before our time St. Ignatius didn't have a chess club. Jim Bruening, though, thought we ought to have one, so he got a number of us freshmen and some upperclassmen who wanted to play and organized a club. Mr. J. E. O'Reilly, S.J., ran weekly meetings for us in the library. We played a good deal of chess on our own during the lunch hour, too.

ook what comes out! Bob Kapitan, Emery Tomor, nd Don Hagerty print pictures in the dark room.

No! Move the pawn!* These three "silents" are chess-players Don Salasek, Dave Kingsley, Lowell Bassett.

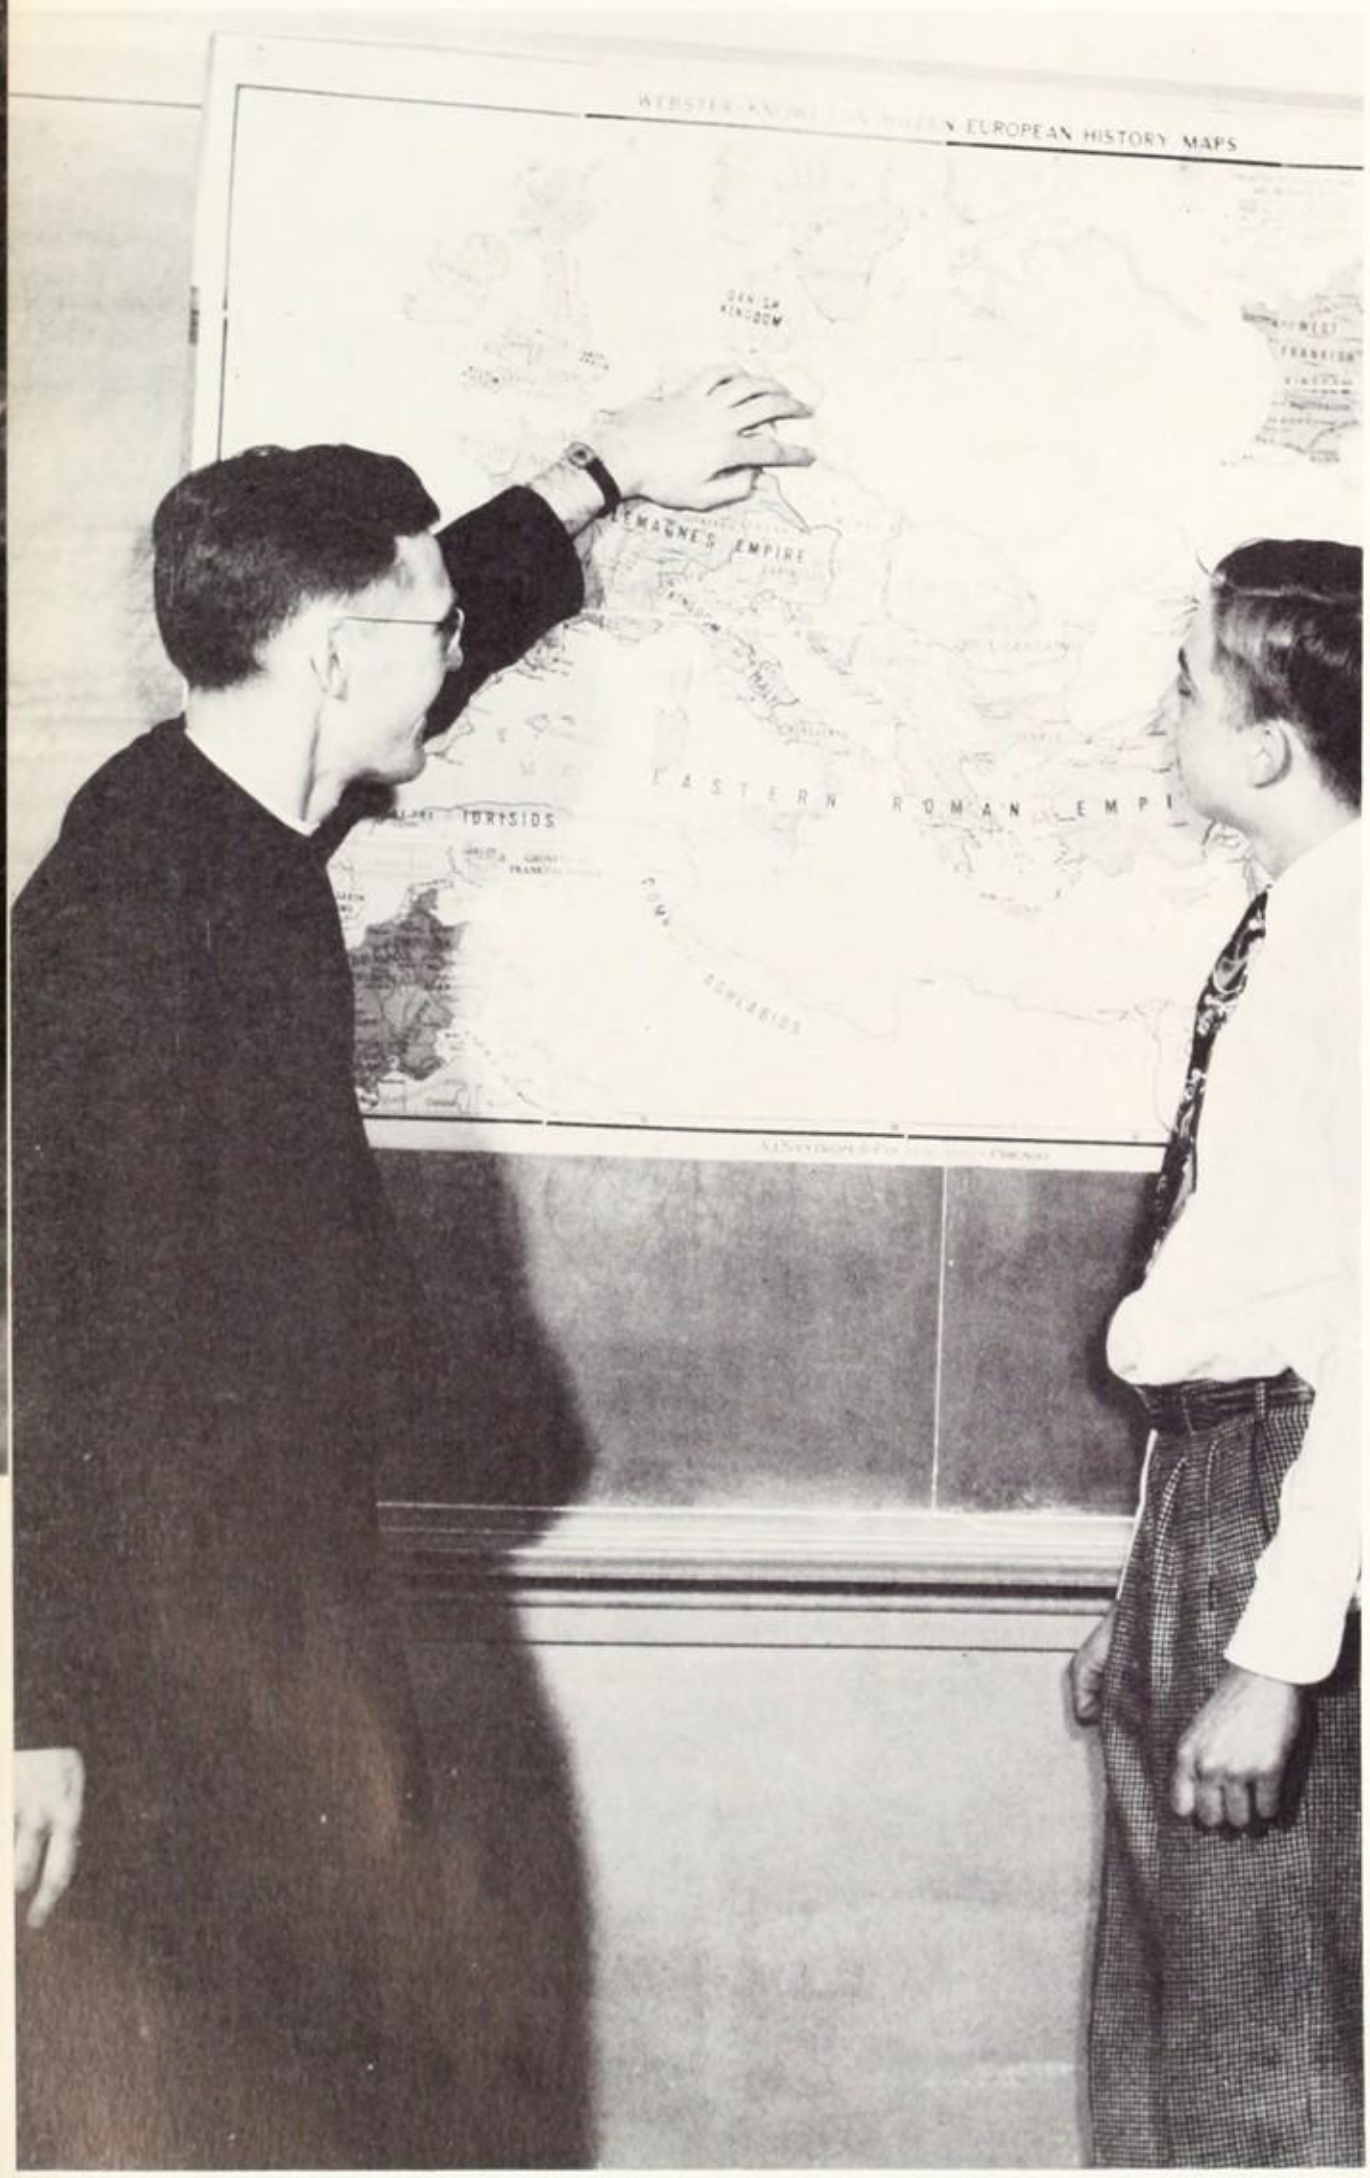
classes develop accurate leaders



The engineer who designs a railway bridge for the freight yards in the flats must be accurate or he endangers life and industry.

The contractor estimating the cost of a job must be accurate in his estimate or his firm will lose money. The doctor prescribing a medicine must be accurate or the life of his patient is imperiled.

The City needs men who make accuracy a virtue.

As freshmen we found that the necessity of making cases agree in Latin, working an algebra problem correctly, at first forced us to be accurate, then helped us to see the value of accuracy and appreciate it.

"Budapest? It's right here someplace," says Mr. O'Shaughnessy to Paul Monhart.

frosh sports form alert leaders

Look at City-life! See how each man in his needs depends on others!

To live happily in the City man must be alert to his own needs and to the needs of his neighbor-citizen. The merchant must be alert to the needs of his customers. The manager to the needs of his plant.

Alertness is learned in many ways and in many places. But we found that freshman sports taught us to be alert to the needs of others. Only the alert player anticipates his opponents move, throws a key block, or spots the opening through which to score.

The frosh had scarcely finished registering before the athletes among them were checking out helmets and shoulder pads from the cage and boarding the bus for football scrimmage at Brookside Park.

When their season began, the frosh got off to a bad start. They lost their first three games to Lincoln, St. Edwards, and Latin. Then Mr. R. T. Mahoney, S. J., and Mr. C. A. Conroy, S. J., took over the coaching. The frosh won their next three games from St. John Cantius, Holy Name, and Rhodes, but lost their last game to Lorain St. Marys.

Star on the frosh squad was halfback Pat Hussey whose 83 yard run for the only Ignatius touchdown in the Holy Name game high-lighted the season. George Hahn, Dick Mihalus, and George Haas filled out the backfield. Filling out the forward wall were Neil Martau and John Hyland, ends; John Seliskar and Tom Kilbane, tackles; Bill Gedeon and Frank Campolo, guards; and Brian Hayes at center.

Tom Kilbane and Jim Hatvany (94) watch a Latin lineman stop ball carrier Pat Hussey after a hard plunge through the center of the line.

activities mold industrious leaders

Cleveland is our campus; part of the campus is industry, factories, mills. But we found, from watching the City, that industry is also a quality in successful men, in men who begin projects and, with hard work, finish them.

As sophomores this year, as we continued our membership in the Sodality, took over more of the duties of the Art Club, Eye staff, Harlequin acting and stage crews, we came to know the work involved in successfully completing a project. Because we published issues of the EYE, because we built sets for the Harlequin play, we realized that we had developed in ourselves the habit of industry.

colors splash

The art club didn't hold regular meetings. We got together whenever there was a job to be done.

John Witt would pass the word along that the I.A.A. had given Mr. D. J. O'Shaughnessy, S.J., our moderator, a big publicity job to put through, and we would meet after school in the Art Club work room in the Annex basement.

Jack Gaughan or Charlie Novak had brought down a radio. There was always a lot of paint and cardboard on hand. Working conditions were rather good.

You probably remember some of our big jobs—the stairwell banners that stirred up spirit for the football games and for the Harlequin play, Brother Orchid; the posters we painted to push the Tax Stamp Drive and Sodality functions.

Bob Wilhelms, Chuck Novak, Jack Gaughan, and John Witt were the mainstays of the art club.

song in the air

We had snow before Christmas. Those nights that we went out caroling the world was white, the stars were cold fire. The bells on Tom Kerver's Santa Claus outfit had a frosty ring.

We caroled for the patients at St. John's Hospital, Marymount, and Charity; for the aged at the Little Sisters of the Poor. On the Sunday night before Christmas we caroled down in the railroad terminal. People waiting for trains and friends, soldiers on their way home for Christmas leave, stopped to listen to our song.

When we sang for the Little Sisters of the Poor, Ed Pike, Jack Ginley, Tom Traczyk, Tim Garry, Marty Patton, Joe Bodnar, and George Matyk formed the tenor section.

Christmas Carolers: John Weber, George Matyk, Marty Patton, John Barrett, John Ginley, Tom Tomasic, Carl Acker, Stanley Weber, Tom Traczyk.

sounding off

We remember the football games when we sat in the stands and sounded the "charge." We remember the dignity with which Jack Hearns directed the Alma Mater at half-time, the sound of a thousand voices singing the school song behind us in the stands. We remember the May Pop Concert, the Tuesday lessons and Thursday drills, the informal sessions before band practices started when it was, "One, two, one, two, beat it out, boy . . . Louder on that horn!"

Stanley Weber's story captures the interest of sophomore writers Neil Mooney, Joe Brandabur, John Weber, Marty Patton, Gerry Porter, Doug Lonon.

from pencil to print

Tom Kerver was editor-in-chief of the Eye. Senior and junior staff members, about mid-year, began calling him "Big-Dome" because of his fiery drive. He didn't have too much patience with his sophomore writers, either. About all we ever heard from him was, "Here's your assignment. Get it in Wednesday."

John Weber used to write the "Honors" story each issue. Stan Weber, Marty Patton, Tom Tomasic, Gerry Drottar did a number of news stories; some of them were printed on the front page. Gerry Porter wrote up the Jay Vee football and basketball games.

dimes for India; tickets for games

Our I.A.A. was strictly a business organization. Bill Ginley was president. We operated from our office under the stairway just inside the main school door.

We handled the financial end of a number of activities. Our biggest was sports, selling tickets for basketball and football games. But we handled the subscriptions, sponsors, patrons, and ad sales for the Ignatian, the tickets for Brother Orchid, and the returns on the magazine drive.

Every Tuesday during religion class we took up the weekly mission collection for the Jesuit Missionaries working in Patna, India. In a way we became missionaries, too; for the sacrifices we made from our allowances each week helped convert Brahmins and Hindus.

Crowded together in the I.A.A. office are business men Jack Nagy, Tom O'Donnell, Ed Menes, Bernard Gallagher, Bill Ginley.

It takes a lot of money to run a mission. Some of the best Ignatian contributors to the mission collection were Mike Johns, George McBride, Neil Conway, Bob Van Auken, Jack Ankenbrandt.

behind scenes

Opening night, when the curtain went up on the first act of Brother Orchid, Tom Nilges had sunlight streaming through a stage-set window into the gloom of Fat Dutchy's Bar. Tom was technical director; he designed the sets for the bar scene and monastery workroom; he and his crew built them and engineered the changes during the actual production.

Tom and the boys spent a lot of money building these sets. They bought new teaser curtains, strip lights, and spots. Frank Sweeney and his business crew took care of their bills. They pushed the ticket sales, the patron sponsor drive, worked as ticket takers and ushers the nights of the play.

Business men: Smith, Tainer, Porter, Smith, Nemec, Merella, Kraemer, Menes, Kapitan, Mooney, Finn Hill.

When it came to building a bar scene for Brother Orchid, stage crewmen Bill Ryan, Jim McCafferty, Frank Hrach, Ed Pike, Marty Patton knew how to go about it.

classes train intelligent leaders

Men of sound judgment are esteemed on our City-campus. They are depended upon for guidance and leadership in difficult times and crises.

Clients, for instance, depend upon their lawyers to take the facts of their cases and form helpful judgments for them.

Citizens depend upon the City's officials to exercise sound judgment, when forming new policies or suggesting changes so that their government will improve.

Subjects taught in sophomore year prepared us to be men of judgment. History gave us a background; geometry taught us how to reason to definite conclusions; religion gave us principles on which to make our judgments morally sound.

Mr. Joseph Schicker explains a difficult problem in geometry.

sports produce spirited leaders

Living together in the City are many kinds of people—people with different attitudes and interests. Some are interested in the City. Some are not. Some prefer to sit back and let the "other fellows" do it all.

Consequently, there must be men of spirit in the City, men of interest and enthusiasm who can stir the masses, awaken them to an awareness of the City's needs.

Spirit is a quality of leadership. The Jay Vee sports we played as sophomores and juniors gave us spirit, competitive spirit. They taught us determination and fight. Perhaps they have prepared us to be spirited leaders in the City.

jay vees campaign on West Side

Under their new coach, Lou Chelko, the Jay Vees finished their season successfully with five victories and one defeat. Sparked by the running of backs Tom Sinnott and Jack Josie, Jay Vees rolled up their year consecutive winning streak to 14 games before they bowed in defeat to West Tech. This loss also cost them their Jay Vee City Championship.

The offensive unit racked up an average of 24 points per game, while the defense held the opponents to only eight points per game. Largely responsible for this record are linemen ends Tom Mott and Tom McNamara, tackles Jerry Porter and Al Guira, guards Tom Biley and Dick Riessler, and center Bob VanAuken. Tom Waffen held an end post until he suffered a broken collar-bone in the South game.

new coach

This year the Jay Vees opened their season under the direction of a fine new coach, Lou Chelko. Lou comes from Pittsburgh. He studied at the University of Pittsburgh and took an engineering degree. Before coming to Ignatius, Lou coached football at St. James, where, according to the records, his teams were always winners.

team doctor

One man who has done more than his share to keep Ignatius athletic teams in top playing condition is Dr. Sam Scaffidi. "Doc" was at all the games. "Doc" was in the dressing room in the gym every night before practice to treat sprains and pulled muscles. He got new equipment to help sore muscles heal faster. Last January he left to complete his internship in Florida, but he left behind a memory of himself as a competent doctor and a fine fellow.

More and more fans arrived early for basketball games this year. The reason was the always thrilling and colorful and sometimes brilliant brand of basketball that the Ignatius Jay Vees played.

Coach Dick Coyle's squad ran, jumped, and shot their way to a third consecutive West Senate crown. Although spotting most opponents three to four inches per man in height, the scrappy Jay Vees won thirteen of their sixteen games. Before their first setback they extended their three year winning streak to forty-four straight games, a new school record.

Peppy little Jerry McGinty was the sparkplug of the team. Jerry's 208 points established a school Jay Vee scoring record. Rugged Tony Palumbo and Jerry Whalen who carried the brunt of the backboard duties contributed 142 and 35 points respectively.

we grow into responsible leaders

The city has and needs its bosses. It needs shop foremen, captains for the ore freighters, managers for its stores and businesses, presidents for its banks, officials for its offices. The City needs the "Boss-man" for the boss-man knows how to shoulder responsibility, knows how to manage labor and materials to effective and efficient completion of a job or product.

In our junior and senior years, as we assumed the leadership of the Harlequins and Sodality, edited the Eye and the Ignatian, we learned what it was to be a boss-man and became eager to shoulder his responsibilities in the City.

Corn shocks, pumpkins, lanterns, music of Bill Woodring's Band changed St. Patrick's Hall into a harvest dance land Thanksgiving night. With the cute girls from Lourdes and St. Joseph's Academy we danced the evening away.

It was over all too soon, but the night after Christmas we were back again for the Holly Hop which the Sodality sponsored. Christmas trees, lights, holly, music of Dick Eleck's band cast a yuletide glow about us as we danced.

small but sharp

At the band contest in the stadium before the Charity Game it was bitter cold. Joe Dorchak, when our turn came, marched our blue and gold columns down field past the reviewing judges, brought us to a halt, stood us at attention; then marched us on to take our place in the huge school-house formation. We did rather well that afternoon. We ranked high among the competing bands from all-boy schools.

Benedictine played host for the military ball in early April. We wore our band uniforms and our dates wore formals. In the spring, at the Pop Concert, senior members played with us for the last time.

It's a scientist's world. We science clubbers had ours up on the fifth floor in Fr. Stejskal's physic lab. We met there among the Laydn jars and electroscopes every Thursday morning to solve the riddles of the physical universe.

With slides Fr. Stejskal showed us the courses the stars take through the heavens. He explained the fundamentals of radio, how a transmitter and geiger counter operate. He showed us the path of radio waves by using a neon light.

At one of the morning meetings Karl Martersteck and Don Brezine gave lectures on atomic energy. Bill Ermatinger, Art Rothenberger, and Bob Tainer got interested in radio and built their own sets.

our goal: to Jesus through Mary

We got together on Friday afternoons for Sodality meetings. Every month we had a general, spiritual, and two committee meetings. Jack Kundtz was our prefect, Fr. A. V. Kanuch, S.J., and Mr. A. J. Traficanti, S.J., were our moderators. Mr. W. J. Mountain, S.J., and Mr. J. L. Magmer, S.J., helped out with committee meetings.

In the course of the year we accomplished a good deal of work. We restudied the rules. At Christmas time we collected and distributed 3000 cans of food to the Little Sisters of the Poor and to the needy in the neighborhood around school here. On the night after Christmas we sponsored the Holly Hop.

The Literature Committee set up a pamphlet rack in the first floor corridor; at their own committee meetings they studied the principles of literary criticism. The Apostolic Committee spent a lot of their meeting-time studying apologetics.

At a Glee Club practice, the Sunday before Christmas, P. Smith, T. Kerver, P. Mooney, J. Bodnar, E. Walsh, J. Finn polish up the "Adeste Fidelis." Mr. Vander Vennet played the piano.

Hardest workers in the Sodality sponsored canned food drive were Jim Hill, Tom Smith, Bill Ryan, and Bob Tuma.

For three days between semesters there was a cessation of activity at 30th St. and Carroll Avenue; a pall of silence covered the school and St. Mary's. Inside the church juniors prayed, listened to and reflected on the instructions of retreat master Fr. Williams, S.J.

classicists and the golden dream

To know the "glory that was Greece and the grandeur that was Rome;"

To reconstruct the temples and statues of a culture that has guided the destiny of Western Civilization and been a kind of cradle for Christianity;

To master the studies that have trained educated men in all times—these were the things we were trying to achieve this year at our Classical Club meetings.

When we say "trying to achieve" we are not being modest; we are being realistic. Grecian glory and Roman grandeur come only after their languages have been mastered.

At our meetings this year we gained a better grasp on Latin and Greek. We advanced a step toward the attainment of a golden dream.

In the interscholastic Latin Contest, in which all mid-western Jesuit High Schools competed, Bob Kannenberg's paper placed second; Don Brezine's, eighteenth; Karl Martersteck's, twentieth.

our honor society expanded

The Sigma Iota Gamma chapter of the National Honor Society at St. Ignatius is now three years old. This year we expanded the membership and tried to make the chapter known among the student body.

One of the things that we did at our Monday morning meetings was nominate new members. To qualify for membership, the prospective member must receive the unanimous vote of the present members; he must have a high scholastic average, and show evidence of leadership in class and extra curricular activities.

Fr. T. F. Murray, S.J., our moderator, awarded gold filled pins bearing the inscription "National Honor Society," to the new members.

The scholarship test was a very important item on the National Honor Society's agenda list this year. Here Don Brezine discusses results with Tom Kerver, Tony Stringer, Jack Kundtz, and Mike Lavelle.

on stage, actor!

Mike Lavelle played Little John Sarto, the lead role in Brother Orchid, the play the Harlequins staged in February this year. Brother Orchid was on Broadway; in the late 30's Edward G. Robinson played Sarto in the film version.

It was a play of gangsters and monks, of gun play and prayer. The scenes were laid in the Floratine Monastery and Fat Dutchy's Bar.

George O'Donnell played Fat Dutchy, the casual, easy-talking bar tender. Jim Brady, Dick Berg, Tom Hopkins were monks; Don Brezine, Tom Shaughnessy, Frank Garry, Chuck Novak were gangsters. Chuck Marcellino played the Italian fruit peddler.

Edward G. Robinson, who played the title role in Hollywood, gave Mike Lavelle some pointers when he visited Cleveland.

We went in for speech more this year than we did in other years. For some of us it was new work, but all of us enjoyed it. We gained confidence, poise, came to know our speaking abilities. Mr. W. J. Mountain, S.J., coached us in original oratory and oratorical declamation; Mr. O'Shaughnessy, S.J., in extempore; Mr. E. P. Simon, S.J., in dramatic. We spoke at Lourdes, the Invitational Tourney, Cathedral Latin, Wadsworth, the District Tourney. We won some fine prizes.

Should all Americans be subjected to conscription for essential services in the time of war? Or shouldn't they? That's the question we debated pro and con all season. We found, after a while, that we could defend it or attack it with equal ease; and we did. We debated at Lourdes, at St. Joseph Academy, at the Invitational Tourney at St. Ignatius. At the beginning of the second semester Mr. Lynch, S.J., our coach, took us on down-state trips to Canton, Alliance, Port Clinton, Cuyahoga Falls. We won; we lost; we had fun; we learned.

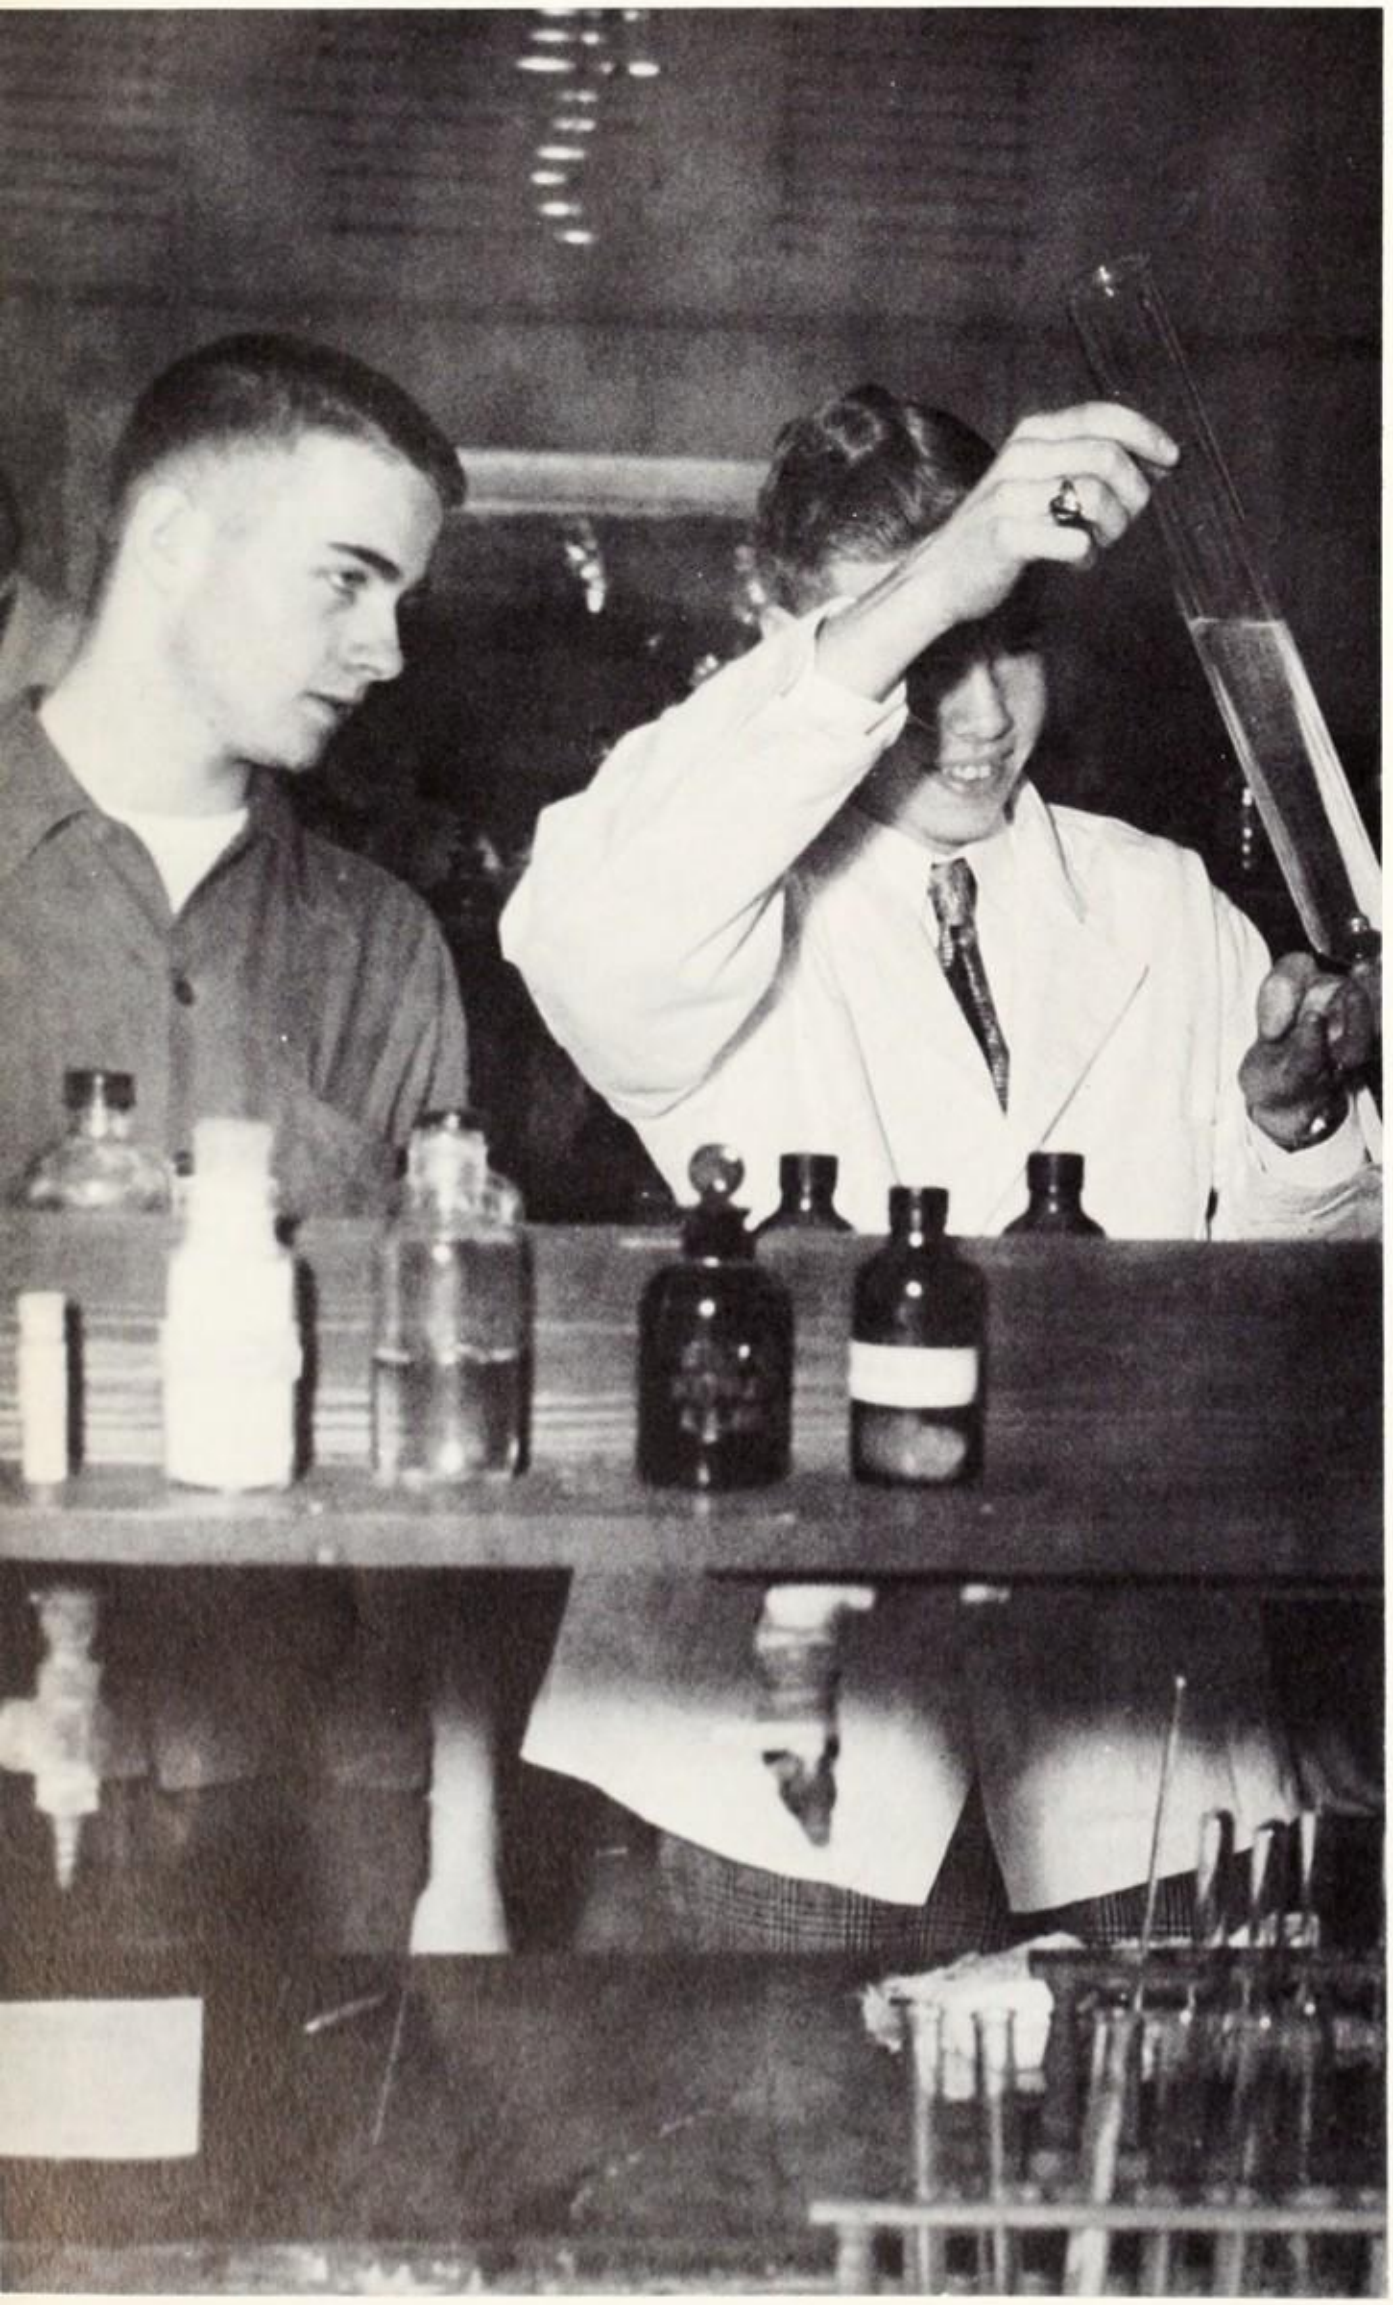
classes build leaders



The man who achieves success in the complicated life of the City is, oftentimes, the man who is well informed along one line.

At the university the successful teacher has a mastery of his own particular field of learning. The successful doctor specializes in diseases of lungs or the functions of the eye.

In junior and senior year we laid the ground work for this specialization. Those of us who are going to be engineers or scientists, took the scientific course; some who are going to be priests, teachers, lawyers, took the classical course. Others who are going into business or management took the academic and general courses.

sports shape co-operative leaders

As we walk the streets of our campus we come to realize that men cannot get along in the City as individuals, but must help one another. Cooperation is necessary if anyone is to succeed. Each man must do his share.

Playing varsity ball we learned that it takes eleven men to make a football team, not just four backs. There must be five men on a basketball team, not just one or two. Each player has a definite job to do on these teams, and he, like the man who works in the City, can only do that job well if he cooperates with the others.

coaching staff

Because he assembled untried players into an efficient machine, because he overcame mighty odds in producing a winning team, because he accomplished all this in his first year as varsity coach, we nominate John Wirtz as "The Coach of the Year." The team's success, in a large sense, was due also to the development of green material into a competent backfield. Backfield coach Dick Coyle, a newcomer to Ignatius, developed several new stars. Mr. Wirtz and Mr. Coyle comprise as capable a coaching duo as St. Ignatius has ever had.

first defeat, first win

After 19 consecutive games without defeat, the inevitable happened. With the combination of a fine aerial attack and the brilliant running of halfback Jim DeFabio, the Lions piled up a 31 to 14 score. A 45 yard pass from Dillemuth to Walsh plus Paoloni's three yard plunge put the Wildcats in the scoring column.

The Wildcats opened their title defense successfully by bouncing back from defeat and downing West Tech's Warriors 13 to 6. Six pass interceptions by Don Mack and Hank Gingerich turned the tide of victory. They checked several of the Warriors' touchdown threats and set up both touchdowns. Terry Conway came into his own as a running star.

Cats falter

Rhodes Rams, that sunny Saturday afternoon, dimmed Ignatius' Charity Game hopes. Don Kasner's 18 yard pass to John Tekesky gave the Rams a 7 to 0 decision. Conway's and Stringer's running, and Don Mack's punting kept Rhodes in continual trouble.

Playing the underdog for the first time in three years, the Wildcats defeated Lincoln 6 to 0. Dillemuth threw an eight yard pass to Paoloni who carried the ball over for a touchdown.

Terry Conway throws a key block against a South tackler; which springs Dan Stringer loose for a long run.

Cats second

All-Senate halfback John Morabito, carrying West High to a 12 to 6 victory, destroyed Ignatius' title hopes. The Wildcats sprang back to win their last three games and the second place spot in the West Senate. Roger Ross, achieving the most spectacular performance of the season, scored on two long runs and passed for a third touchdown as the Saints humbled South, 40 to 7. Two touchdowns within the space of a minute buried Marshall in the mud, 20 to 7. A 12 to 6 victory over Holy Name stamped the season a success.

Dr. Sam, in his usual role of aiding injured Wildcats, checks Ed Lukacevic's hand during half time of the Holy Name game.

champs in our book

Average height, good speed, and Dave Demko combined to make the 1951-52 Wildcat cage squad the best team that ever wore Ignatius' colors on the hardwood. With a pair of giant centers, a half dozen excellent shots, and two mighty clever playmakers, the Cats won thirteen of their fifteen regular season games and earned recognition as one of the top squads in the state.

School scoring records were rewritten as eight old standards went by the boards. Most spectacular feat was a brilliant fifty-eight point spree turned in by Dave Demko against Glenville. The team's 111 points in that game also dwarfed all previous performances. Dave's individual season output and the team's composite season total were also new highs for St. Ignatius. In all four of these scoring records the old marks for field goals were also bettered.

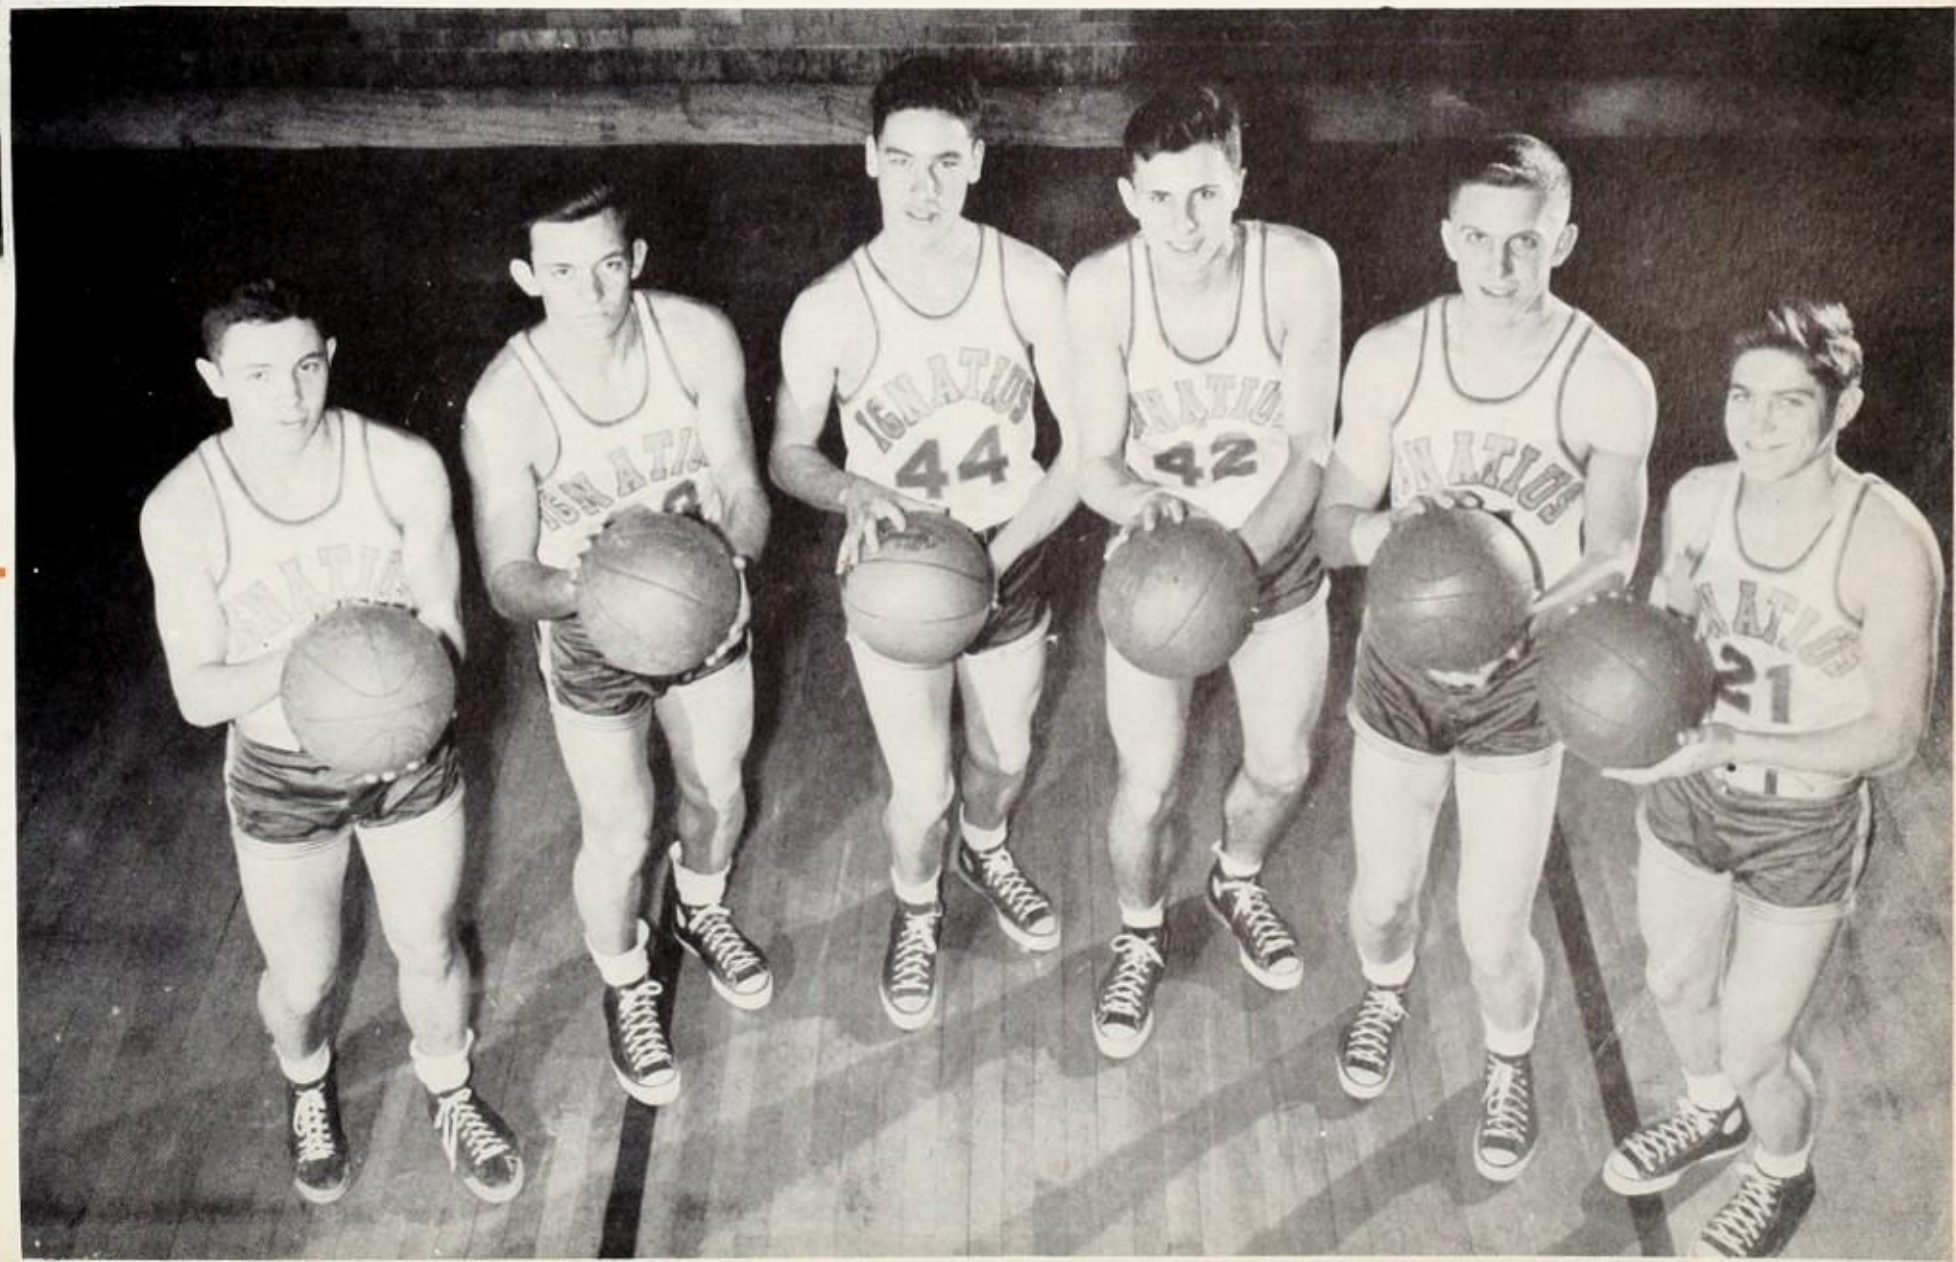
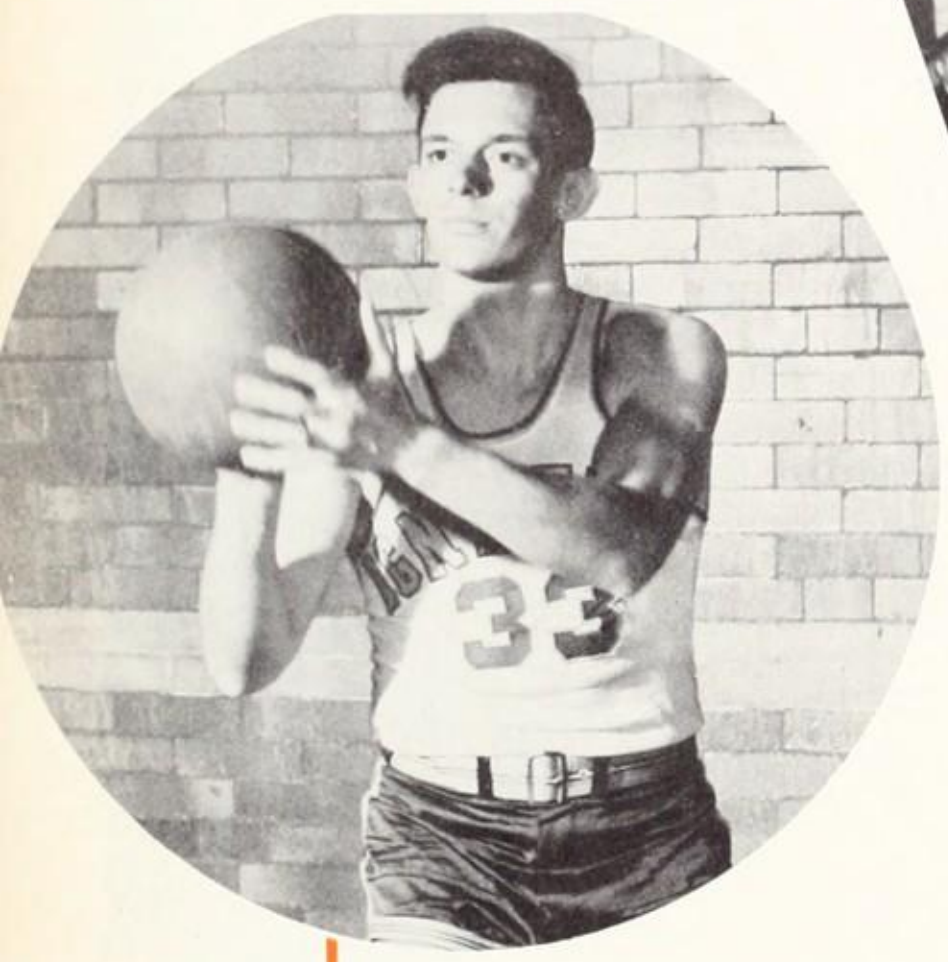
No, Chambers, Bill Coyne has control of that rebound.

The six players who led this year's basketball squad in spirit, action, and scoring are Hank Gingerich, Dave Demko, Bill Coyne, Bob Reitz, Dick Walsh, and Frank Humenik.



Dave Demko, all-scholastic, all-Catholic, voted most valuable player in the Senate.



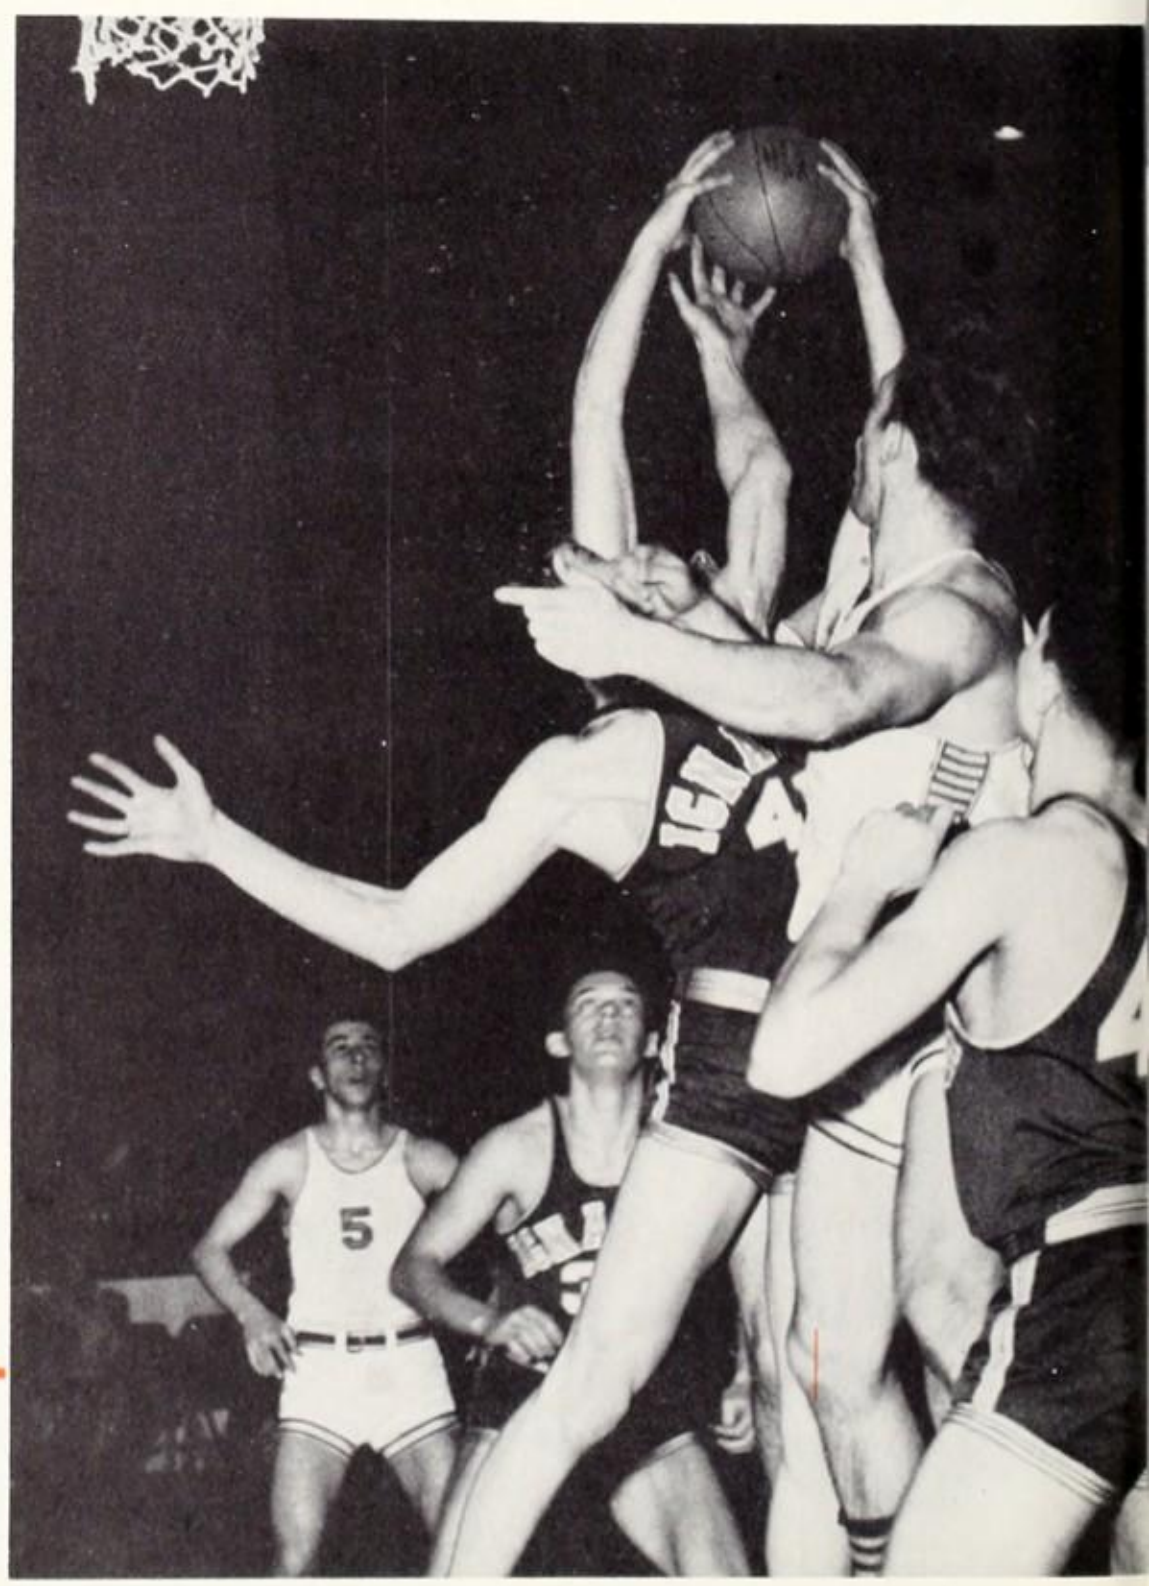
arena victors

Surging to overcome a seven point deficit in the last three minutes of the game, and then rolling on to score six big markers in the overtime period, St. Ignatius downed Collinwood in the Senate championship consolation game at the Arena. The 50-44 victory served as a notice to all that any team fostering hopes of copping top honors in the district tournament would have to beat the Wildcats.

For the third consecutive year Dave Demko was awarded a trophy and a trip to New York for his outstanding play in the Arena contest.

Rhodes' Pike and Guzik just can't get that ball.

Soph forward Rich Pohlman battles for rebound under Cat's basket.



Senior and junior cross country runners Dick Walton, Ed Colwell, Dick Gale, and Ed Cassidy look up to Mr. Chambers, S. J. for a final word of advice.

flash on cinders

Four years ago a complete track and cross country program was introduced. Each year the squads got a little better. This spring they had their best season. Coach John Wirtz had two fine sprinters return from last years squad: Roger Ross and Dick Walsh. In the field events he had Frank Sweeney to hurl the shot-put, Mike Lavelle for the broad jump and discus, Russ Horn for the high jump, and John Smith for pole vaulting. It was these track stars that helped the Ignatius men make their fine showing this year.

Prospects for a successful baseball season at Ignatius were bright in the spring of '52. Mr. Dick Coyle, new baseball coach had All-scholastic pitcher Dick Lanser and All-West Senate shortstop Dave Demko returning to his squad. Besides these, veterans Barney Dillemuth, Bob Porter, Hank Gingerich, Jerry Becker, John O'Donnell, and Bob Dobransky also returned. The sophomores had some good prospects to offer, too: Dick Pohlman, Terry Hayes, and Dan Stringer.

In '51 the Wildcats won the District Championship for the first time in Ignatius baseball history. They defeated Benedictine in the play-off for the city title.

All-scholastic pitcher Dick Lanser and All-West Senate shortstop Dave Demko shake hands.
